NOTES.

CORRECTION—In his article “Practical Activities in Legal Ethics,”<sup>1</sup> the author, Mr. Chas. A. Boston, stated that the Legal Ethics course at the Albany Law School had been inaugurated by General Thomas H. Hubbard following the adoption of the Canons of the American Bar Association.<sup>2</sup> He has since informed us that it was in 1902 that General Hubbard made his gift to the Albany Law School to found this chair, and that the chair was formally instituted and the opening lecture delivered by its founder on the evening of November 12, 1903.—Editor.
